OYES NEGLIGENCE.

Battle Creek depot was reached [illegible] was at 1:37 [illegible] in here to the station yards, a distance of [illegible] half, there is a double track. When the White mail [illegible] a full stop in the depot, the [illegible] operator handed [illegible] copies of his order for the train to [illegible] street about a half mile distant, [illegible] there await the passing of the west bound Pacific express [illegible] This train, which was [illegible] three hours late, was composed of thirteen day coaches and two baggage cars. Most of the day coaches had seen many years service and were in [illegible] condition. Northbound No. 1 was packed with excursion people, the majority of whom were taking advantage of the low rates [illegible] their way to the World's Fair [illegible] Exposition. The Pacific express [illegible] in charge of Engineer [illegible] Conductor John [illegible] had received orders at Battle Creek to look out for the westbound train [illegible] the double track and [illegible] on the alert. After crossing the [illegible] at the Battle Creek station [illegible] Woolley proceeded up the track but instead of stopping [illegible] with his usual [illegible] until the westbound expired [illegible] on and entered again [illegible] He had hardly [illegible] of a mile when the [illegible] the express was [illegible] slight curve [illegible] of the railroad [illegible] westward [illegible] an hour.

There was not [illegible] or reversal [illegible] lives and [illegible] motive power [illegible] could be heard [illegible] fearful force [illegible] plowed early [illegible] express driver [illegible] baggage car [illegible] the day coaches [illegible]

The block [illegible] hits four of the [illegible] coped the first [illegible] the second [illegible] third like a flash [illegible] of each passing [illegible] sleeping passengers [illegible] in amazes to the [illegible]

To add to the horrors [illegible] ture from the stoves [illegible] flames mounted up the [illegible] shrieks of the [illegible] succeeded by [illegible] cries and appeals [illegible] imprisoned by the heavy timbers [illegible] held down by the [illegible] work.

The train [illegible] of whom had been shaken out of berths by the sudden [illegible] cars but before the fires [illegible] they were almost powerless to render any assistance except [illegible] the fourth car. At the [illegible] crash Henry Cantell [illegible] the right clerks in the Grand Union hotel [illegible] distance [illegible] also telephoned to the station [illegible] and. As all [illegible] was misled and several minutes were lost before the alarm could be given, [illegible] to awaken the echoes. Help [illegible] ment was prompt in responding but the nearest hydrant was nearly two blocks and feet away and when there [illegible] was had the pressure was not sufficient to throw a stream. Finally a stream was secured from another hydrant the [illegible] meanwhile the burning wreck with axes, [illegible] and lengths of rails [illegible] by the time the supply of water was available the [illegible] had been reduced to [illegible] timber little more than [illegible] mining.

The firemen then commenced the grewsome work of removing what remained of the victims. The police [illegible] charge of the valuables and keeping the crowd at a distance. In response to the alarm from the fire station pretty nearly the entire town had turned out and the leading residents assisted by their wives, devoted themselves to the relief of those injured in the fourth car. These were placed in buggies and carts and taken to the Nichols Home, where a corps of physicians and nurses were in waiting to minister to their sufferings. The first body was found about six o'clock and a few minutes after a dozen were discovered in a heap around the stove of the second car. The task continued until twenty bodies or portions of human beings had been brought out of the debris. For want of a sufficient number of stretchers, boards were nailed together and a freight car standing on the side track was converted into a temporary morgue. As the work went on portions of satchels and ladies' pocketbooks, sewed gold and silver watches, pocket books containing currency and a quantity of silver money were brought to light and turned over to the officers.

When a second search of the debris made it certain that no bodies remained the freight car was backed down to the city depot, the charred remains transferred to an undertaker's, a wrecking crew set to work, the debris again sorted and afterwards burnt and to night there is nothing in the railroad yards but a heap of ashes to tell the story of one of the most awful holocausts in the history of railroading.

"DIED LIKE A CHRISTIAN."

Not until their dying day will some of the citizens, who were early on the ground, forget the scenes that they were compelled to witness and helpless to relieve. No pen can describe the last moments of Mrs. Charles Van Duzen. She had succeeded in getting half way out of the window, but her limbs were pinioned by the heavy frame work of the seat she had been occupying with her husband and this had taken fire. Thus held roasting and burning from the feet up she pleaded and begged for the help that those outside were helpless to give. Despite her terrible agony she retained consciousness to the last, and as the flames crept up and surrounded her she called out her name and address and that of friends to be notified. "I am a teacher in the Methodist Sunday school at Sprout Brook, N. Y., she cried. Say I died like a Christian." Then the side of the car gave way, and she fell back into the flames. Her husband had meanwhile been rescued from the rear car, into which he had been driven by the force of the collision. Both limbs were fractured and he had also received internal injuries. He retained consciousness until his death this afternoon but was kept in ignorance of the fate of his wife. In his last breath he asked Rev. Dr. George R. Knipt to send his love to the two children that he had left at home and also to give them his watch. He was 37 years of age and a deacon in the Methodist church of his native village.

CARE OF THE DEAD.

Many of the articles found in the debris may lead to the identification of some, at least of the long list of unknown dead. These include a recognizable head. Thus include a card handkerchief marked E. Wurtz, a card of A. Allen & Co., of Bay street, Toronto, card of Meriden Fire Insurance Co., Meriden, Conn., with pencil writing [illegible]

WANTED--A REMEDY.

Scholars, Capitalists and Working-men Discuss the Money Question.

WHAT IS THE SOLUTION?

A Representative Gathering at Weber Hall Last Night—Interesting Papers by Prominent Speakers—Speeches by Labor Men.

The Carbin [illegible] at Weber hall last night was [illegible] and proved an interesting occasion. Seated on the platform were a number of prominent leaders in the labor movement. Rev. J. Evans Crook presided and the special subject for the evening was "What Methods are Necessary to Solve the Industrial Problem." Mr. Carbin said that the meeting was for present all classes of people. He hoped that the speakers would listen to the [illegible] run in the usual good-natured fashion.

The first speaker [illegible] was Mr. J. M. Corbin of Denver, editor of the Pick and Hammer, Mr. Corbin read a very written paper that [illegible] and was listened to with great attention. Mr. A. [illegible] followed in a [illegible] vein. Mr. Silverberg [illegible] the speaker [illegible] the [illegible] Mr. Thornton of Trinidad [illegible] Mr. Wilham Scott said a man is worth just what he can make. Labor meetings fail because they follow a formula. He would not have an income tax, but levy a tax upon the land.

President Slocum said the labor question is the most serious one to-day, but he would like to inquire who it is that does not work? The serious question is, how can every fellow who wants to work have a job? It is purely a question of the adjustment of relations. It is the biggest job going. No man ought to go hungry when he wants to work. The speaker declared that the world is growing better and pointed out facts in history to prove it. There are some natural monopolies that belong to the people. They already have the postal service, and in time would have the telegraph and the railroads. In the meantime we must work together in this country and see that each has as far as possible what belongs to him under the law.

Mr. Louis R. Ehrich objected to calling this a conference of labor and capital. Capital is labor plus responsibility. He told of his experience in running a big business, and how many a time he would have been glad to have exchanged places with one of his clerks. We must have governments, he said. He believes in making it impossible to have those great fortunes in this country, but the income tax as suggested, would not be competent to prevent it. Mr. Ehrich said he had begun to believe in the single tax theory and would have something to say to the people of this town on the subject before long. It is a just idea. To his mind the solution of the labor problem is not in the introduction of new laws and systems but a new motive power in the conduct of the lives of men. When every man feels that he is not for himself, but for all mankind then the question will be solved. That condition is coming through the new attitude of the churches.

Rev. A. R. Kieffer said that he believed the true solution had been reached by Mr. Ehrich. The first speaker's ideas as he understood them were not to do away with trades unions and such organizations. They are only plasters and lotions that relieve the pain until the disease can be cured. The doctor of the body the doctor of man will solve it. The problem was solved 1893 years ago by the carpenter of Nazareth. We have all been trying to avoid the solution but must come to it.

Mr. [illegible] said that the [illegible] vanced in the early part of the evening [illegible] believed were in harmony with what had been said this evening. He believed with Thomas Jefferson, that the best governed people are those who are the least governed.

Mr. Carrington said that he believed that this had been the best meeting ever held in this city and he hoped that great good would come from it.

Upon motion of Rev. Mr. Bullock a vote of thanks was given Mr. Corbin and Mr. Preston for their addresses.

SOMETHING NEW.

A New Club for Congregational Church People.

The Congregational church of this city in connection with the Second Congregational church has evolved an interesting social club of somewhat different in its character from the other similar church organizations of the city. For the past three years the Mens Monday Evening Club of the First church has proved a great [illegible] success that its members are strongly in favor of its continuance and at least four and perhaps [illegible] of the club will be held during the winter beginning next Monday October [illegible]. There will be twelve [illegible] of which four will be devoted to literature, two to art, two current topics and three social evenings. The prospect [illegible] will be arranged by an literary committee consisting of Mrs. Sarah [illegible] Mrs. Harriet P. Crampton, Mr. [illegible] Mr. Walter [illegible] and Mr. Edward Herrick, in addition to [illegible] of Mrs. Elizabeth [illegible], Mrs. Alice C. Bemis, Mrs. A. O. Hagerman, Mrs. Eleanor R. Orr and Professor Wm. Strong. The committees on [illegible] of Miss Marie Metz Noyes, Mrs. Helen H. Morley, Mr. [illegible] S. Rouse, Mr. J. Baird White and Professor L. S. Parsons and a committee on topics committee consisting of Mrs. Sarah Dery, Miss A. B. Porter, Wm. M. Hall, Mr. Chas. W. Hines and Mr. Henry M. Blackmer.

Oct. — Odd Corners in Literature.
Nov. — Electricity.
Nov. — Songs of the Forefathers.
Dec. — An Evening with Victor Hugo.
Dec. 18 — Art in Art (Illustrated).
Jan. — Tax Reforms.
Jan. — A Few Down Evening.
Feb. — Southern Writers Since the War.
Feb. 19 — American Art (Illustrated).
March — To be announced.
March 19 — Scotland in Literature.
April 2 — College Songs of Our Own and Other Lands.

There will be some expenses involved in the conduct of the club and all who are able and willing to assist in defraying these will be invited to do so by signing the constitution of the club which will be submitted at its first meeting and paying an annual membership fee of 25 cents, but as in the case of the men's club a cordial invitation is given to all to attend the meetings, whether members or not. The programme for next Monday evening will be:

1. Organization.
2. Odd Corners in Literature by Mr. Walter L. Wilder, with illustrative readings. The Rip Van Winkle of the Talmud. A Child in House that Jack Built.
3. Music by the Colorado College Male quartette.
4. Newspaper Rhymes by Rev. Jas. D. Gregg, with illustrative readings.
5. Banjo Music by Hagerman Hall banjo club.
6. Foreign Myths, Fairy Stories and Fables, Miss Lina Wickard with illustrative readings.
7. American Indian Folk Lore. The Myth of the Creation Myth. Chinese Folk Lore. The Origin of Ants.

All persons interested are cordially invited to attend the meetings of the club which will be on alternate Monday evenings at 8 o'clock, beginning Monday, Oct. 23. It is not intended that the meetings shall break up as soon as the literary programme is over, but that there shall be a pleasant lingering for social intercourse.

A Supersedeas Granted.

DENVER, Oct. 20.—The Court of Appeals granted a supersedeas this forenoon to arrest the sale of the belongings of the Denver Water Works company. The Central Trust company of New York filed a bond in the sum of $75,000. The property has been advertised for sale Oct. 24.

No Silver Bought.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—There were 1,000 ounces of silver offered for sale to the Treasury Department to-day at prices ranging from $0.7300 to $0.71 per ounce fine. All the offers were declined, the department making a counter offer of $0.7300.

Henry Starr Convicted.

FT. SMITH, Ark., Oct. 20.—Henry Starr, the notorious desperado, was tonight convicted of murder in the first degree, the jury having been out since yesterday at 6 p. m. The charge on which he was tried was the killing of Deputy United States Marshal Wilson. Monday Starr and "Kid" Wilson will be put on trial for holding up and robbing the Missouri, Kansas and Texas train at Price's Creek.

ORIGIN OF THE PEACH.—It has never been clearly ascertained what was the original parent of the peach, says Meehan's Monthly. It is however, well known that the peach, the almond and the nectarine can all be developed, the one from the other and it is therefore reasonable that all had the same origin. It has been supposed that the almond was really the antecedent of the other two. Recently, however, there has been found a wild plant in the north of China which is considered a good species and has been named Amygdalus Davidiana, and it is believed that this is really the parent of the peach and its allies. All that is known of the peach and almond is that they were in cultivation as garden plants as far back as written history goes.

TEACHING BEARS.—It is said that the gypsies of Transylvania teach young bears to dance by placing them on heated sheets of iron. A piece of strongly accentuated dance music is played on a violin, and as the animal lifts its legs alternately to escape the heat, it involuntarily keeps time to the music. The lesson is repeated until the bear has learned to move its legs regularly to the sound of the fiddle without the prompting of scorching toes.

A German physiologist has found that a small amount of alcohol is contained in milk of drunken mothers, so that children of such women may be imbibers of spirits from earliest infancy.

REVIEW OF TRADE

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Commercial Summary.

DEMAND REMAINS SLIGHT

The Financial Conditions are Better but Little Business is Being Done. The Number of Failures is Still Large. Stock Market.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Review of trade to morrow will say: There has been much gain in hope and a little in business. Assurances that the repeal bill will soon be passed have again been accepted by traders as a reason for buying things speculative at high prices, and with money abundant and call loans having been received in this city within ten weeks, speculation in stocks and products has an unusual stimulus and would have extended even more but for continued embarrassment of industries.

Stocks have gained during the week [illegible] per share on the average for railroads with sales of 100,000 shares. The receivership for the Union Pacific had been anticipated and the street reasons that many other stocks are selling on a receivership basis already and that, in general, the worst likely to happen has been discounted. Wheat has risen a little over 1 per cent helped by heavy foreign purchases and in spite of better crop prospects. Corn is stronger. Pork has been lifted less than other collaps as feared by some. Petroleum has been advanced one cent and Brazil speculators are supposed to be utilizing lombar investments to increase the value of coffee. With these good signs there are some not so good. Renewals of maturing notes to a larger amount are forced upon the banks here, though practically all the clearing house certificates have been retired here and at Boston.

Business is so slow that merchants are asking for new loans and yet the aggregate of commercial indebtedness must still be large. The state of the Treasury excites some remark, its gold surplus having fallen to $[illegible]. Imports are far behind those of last year and the accumulation of goods in bond is unusually large so that customs as well as internal revenue receipts decrease heavily. The root of the difficulty is the decrease in consumption of all kinds and in this respect the week has brought no perceptible change.

The shrinkage appears less in cotton than in some other branches of manufacture and during the week there has been a slight improvement in the market for some goods. But some large mills which recently resumed have stopped again and while the number in operation increases the condition of the markets indicates plainly that few are working at their full capacity. The reduction of wages has been general and does not tend to increase the consumption of goods. The caution of boot and shoe manufacturers it is believed has enabled that industry to work into a safe position, but while the stocks of dealers are in question only low orders received are not enough to fully employ the shops in operation. Some improvement is reported and the decrease in eastern shipments compared with last year is 22 per cent for the week. In silks mixed textiles and knit goods the situation has not changed and the demand is small. In woolens a slight improvement is perceived in orders given and the number of cutters employed but about as many mills are closing as resuming work and the sales of wool at the three chief markets have been 3,625,500 pounds against 10,330,000 last year. There has been some buying at the west for the future and one or two carpet mills are starting, since the export of 25,000 rolls has upset the English market but if the home market were in normal condition, the exports would not now have been tried.

The volume of domestic trade has been slowly increasing for some weeks, as reports from other cities indicate, and in all comparisons the fact that trade increased in September and October last year should be kept in mind.

The exchanges at the principal clearing house show a decrease of 25.5 per cent for the week, which is less than appeared some weeks ago, though it may be partially due to the unusual volume of payments deferred and now made only in part.

The earnings of railroads show a little more decrease than last week compared with last year and 8.7 per cent for the month, the south and west about 15 per cent., but no decrease appears on the great trunk lines. At most points banks are somewhat relaxing their caution, but uncertainty regarding monetary legislation everywhere retards confidence and until domestic consumption of goods revives enough to restore normal activity of industries, caution is likely to prevail. There is little questioning about the probable effect of the compromise reported at Washington.

Failures of the week number 346 in the United States against 210 last year, and in Canada 20 against 25 last year.

New York Stock Market.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Money on call has been easy, ranging from 1½ to 2, last loan at 1½, and closing offered at 1½. Prime mercantile paper 6@8 per cent.

The opening was almost buoyant, prices advancing ½ to 1¼ per cent., the Grangers, the Industrials and Western Union leading the upward movement. The rise was followed by a drop in Chicago Gas of 1½ per cent. and the general list receded ¼ to ¾.

Exchange on London, 4 82¼@4 82½; Sight drafts, 4 84½@4 84¾. Bar silver, 72 8.

Montpellier le Vieux, the rocky city near Millau, France, is a singular piece of nature's carving. It is an isolated mass of stone, about 2500 feet above the sea, and includes a section wonderfully like a towered citadel, around which are depressions, 100 or 100 feet deep, resembling respectively an amphitheater, a necropolis, a parade ground, and a well built city quarter, with monuments, gates and straight streets. The whole—about five hundred acres—is surrounded by a natural wall.

REGISTER TO-DAY.

This is the last day on which according to the Australian ballot law, new names can be put on the registration list. All persons who have not hitherto been on the list, and all who failed to vote at the last city election and who did not appear before the County Commissioners for the purpose of having their names retained on the list, must be registered if they wish to vote at the coming election. The books are open at the County Assessor's room at the brick building on Kiowa street from 8 a. m. until 8 p. m. All persons desiring to register must be vouched for by two persons whose names appear on the registration books, but these need not necessarily be of the same precinct or ward as the applicant.

Those persons who have changed their residence must also change their registration, but this may be done up to and including Friday next.

So far as Colorado Springs is concerned there is no doubt of the overwhelming success of the Republican ticket. But the registration at Cripple Creek has been very large and the complexion of the vote there is a matter of doubt. It therefore behooves not only every Republican, but every business man and public-spirited citizen of every party to make sure that his name is on the list in order that when the time comes to cast a vote for good and efficient county government he may not be denied the privilege.

AHLAI'S OPPORTUNITY.

It is good while now since the Vice President dropped pretty completely out of sight, and perhaps some people are beginning to forget his existence. He is there yet, however, and he has the opportunity—or will have within a week—to become one of the most famous men in the country.

Ex-Speaker Reed says that if the Vice President has a majority of the Senate behind him, he can do what he pleases. That means, of course, that if Mr. Reed were Vice President, and had a majority of the Senate behind him, he could and would do what he pleased. Granted, however, that there is a great difference between Mr. Reed and other men, still we must acknowledge that his opinion as to the power and authority of the Vice President is decidedly worth knowing. The Ex-Speaker, in the same interview, is represented as saying of the Vice President:

He is chairman of the body. He is elected to manage the body. It does not make any difference about his not coming from the body. He is the man and the only man-to-compel-a-vote, to bring about a vote and to do what is easy to be done at this juncture. The speaker of the House gets his power partly by the appointment of the committees but I think more largely by his ability to recognize whom he pleases. When I was speaker the Democrats said they did not want any rules. They wanted to go along as they pleased. 'All right,' I said, 'I don't want any rules, either. Let's go right along without them.' So we went along and I recognized whom I pleased and did the business I wanted to do. Then the Democrats, who did not like that sort of going as much as they thought they would begin to clamor for rules. Well, I was very glad to have some rules because I knew that by the end of the session I would make a good many enemies and have a good deal of difficulty. So I said 'all right, we will have rules.' And after that we had the rules and I was able to shift my responsibility upon the rules."

This latter part is interesting chiefly in an autobiographical sense; but the first part offers a suggestion to Mr. Stevenson that gives him a chance for fame. Will he take it, and supersede Reed as a parliamentary "Czar," or will he remain a figurehead and leave the Senate to its wrangling?

STOP THAT NULLIFICATION.

Preston has not yet bought a quarter of the silver which the law requires him to buy during October. How much longer is Congress going to allow this thing to go on?

The President avowed in his message to Congress that the law is mandatory, but Carlisle and his deputy go right on disobeying it. They will buy one million, or two million ounces if they choose, or no silver at all; while the law requires them to buy 4,500,000.

This method of nullifying a law they do not like is not only a direct defiance of the authority of Congress, and an encroachment by the Executive on the legislative department; it is the assumption also of a judicial power of interpretation which belongs only to the courts.

It is high time that the Congress should assert its authority and compel obedience to its laws.

It seems to be impossible for the Denver papers to go through any sort of a campaign without accusing each other and the opposing candidates of all the sins in the Decalogue and all the crimes in the calendar. At present they are not fit reading for decent people, especially The Republican. As for The News, that is never fit for decent people to read, and is now only a little worse than usual.

Register to day.

Judge Cooley's Opinion.

It is a fundamental principle of Republican government, said he, that the majority shall rule. It was the intention of the founders of our constitution and embodied in the constitution that a majority of each House of Congress shall control the deliberations of that house, any exception to the general rule being specifically stated. Now for a majority of the Senate to concede for any reason that a rule of practice in the debate or of senatorial courtesy, makes it possible for a minority to prevent legislation by indefinitely protracting debate is equivalent to revolution. It is as much revolution as though accomplished with arms and violence.

If the minority can postpone legislation for one session, they may for a second, and so on. The majority cannot constitutionally concede the existence of a rule or custom which is subversive of the right and duty of legislation.—Judge T. M. Cooley, in Detroit News.

RELIGIOUS WORLD.

Notes and Comments by the Rev. Jas. B. Green, D. D.

I am glad that a recent item in my religious column has called out from Mr. Mellen the courteous note of dissent which appeared in last Saturday's paper, because it gives me the opportunity to add a few words which may perhaps be needed. Mr. Mellen seems to have taken a little more seriously than it was intended, my half playful comment on Professor Thayer's recent utterance. I certainly did not mean to suggest that a controversy which has been so vigorously waged for a century as that over the authorship of the Gospel of John was now ended by the opponents of its genuineness being all convinced of their error. That was too much to expect; but I was interested in observing and in commending to the attention of others the judgment on this question of the professor of New Testament Criticism and Interpretation in the unsectarian Harvard Divinity School. It is of the more interest, because Professor Thayer's predecessor in the same chair in the Cambridge School, Professor Ezra Abbot, one of the most eminent specialists in his department that this country has produced, was also a defender of the genuineness of the fourth Gospel. Harvard University is wont to select for its chairs men of distinguished scholarship and unpartisan disposition and the consentaneous judgment of two such scholars as Abbott and Thayer is suited to carry weight. May I add, that the dicta of German scholarship while deserving consideration are by no means infallible. The strength of the German mind in criticism consists in its freedom from preposessions and its patient and tireless activity in research, as illustrated in that old story, "se non vero, ben trovato" of the dying German scholar who regretted that he had given his whole life to the exposition of the Greek noun instead of concentrating his energies on the dative case. The weakness of the German mind in criticism consists in its over-speculativeness and in its intense individualism which prompts every man to get up a theory of his own; and also in its lack of discipline in sound judgment by an experience such as the English and American races have had in national politics and practical affairs. On this point and with special reference as it happens to the German theories as to the authorship of the Gospel of John, Mr. Matthew Arnold, himself no mean critic, has some instructive and suggestive remarks which are well worth reading in full in his "God and the Bible." After giving some amusing illustrations of the way in which eminent German scholars in their critical discussions berate and vilify each other with personal abuse, Mr. Arnold says: "These are the intemperances and extravagances which men versed in practical life feel to be absurd. One is not disposed to form great expectations of the balance of judgment in those who commit them. Yet what is literary and historical criticism but a series of most delicate judgments on the data given us by research, judgments requiring great tact, moderation and temper. These, however, are what the German professor who has the data from research and makes his judgments on them is so often without, not having enough of the discipline of practical life to give it to him. We speak of judgments be it observed not in the exact sciences but in matters where we deal with the experience of human nature and with the history of the human spirit." Germany Mr. Arnold suggests needs "the practical life of a great nation to correct and balance her learning. But hitherto her learning has lacked this counter-weight." Hence he declares that "as to probability we shall discover that the German Biblical critics are in general, not the likeliest people to reach it and that their theories do in fact attain it very seldom." In an argument it is one thing to collect data and another to draw from the data correct inferences. In the former accomplishment German scholars are unrivalled; in the latter they are wont to be surpassed by scholars of the Anglo-Saxon race. For my own part I find myself disposed to trust upon questions where my own learning is slight men as thoroughly versed in the data which German scholarship has supplied and as well equipped with English or American balance and sobriety of judgment as are Sanday and Westcott on the other side of the water or Abbot and Thayer and Fisher and Ladd on this side—the last named of whom, by the way, remarks in his recent "What is the Bible?" "On the whole, therefore, from the point of view reached in the progress of historical and critical study it can truthfully be claimed that the vigorous and determined assaults made upon the genuineness of the fourth gospel have greatly increased instead of impairing our confidence in the traditional view." That appears to be the deliverance on the question under debate of those two great seats of American scholarship, Harvard University and Yale.

The controversy which has lasted for nearly a decade in the American board, the Missionary Society of the Congregationalists, has come to a happy end. It was terminated at the recent meeting of the board in Worcester by the resignation of Drs. Alden and Thompson of the Prudential committee, who had been tenaciously obstructive, and the appointment of a practically new committee. The result is hailed with joy by the unpartisan men of both of the liberal and conservative wings.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

[Written for THE GAZETTE.]

The Norwegian Medical congress proposes trying the novel experiment of holding its next annual session at sea on board a yacht.

A prize of 10,000 francs has been awarded by the National Horticultural Society of France to M. Charles Baltet for an essay on the horticulture of the five parts of the world.

In experiments on electro-chemical effects on magnetized iron, Mr. T. Andrews, F. R. S., has found that a magnetized bar of steel is more rapidly acted upon in a solution of copper chloride than a like bar of steel not magnetized.

Researches by M. D'Arsonval do not wholly agree with those not long ago made at the Edison laboratory, evidence having been obtained that considerable physiological effects are produced on a strong alternating magnetic field.

A French physicist, M. Daubree, has pointed out that steam escaping under pressure may groove and polish metal like emery, and even cut through metal plate. A metallic surface exposed to a leak of steam at a pressure of 105 pounds was channeled and etirated, as with a saw or file.

BURNING PULVERIZED FUEL.—A method of using coal dust without special preparation is being tested by two Berlin engineers, Wegner and Baumert. By means of a funnel provided with an agitator at the bottom, the dust is made to enter an air-tube, when it is carried to the furnace by a current of air, which also works the agitator. The furnace is lined with bricks, and the incandescent partitions cause the rapid and complete combustion of the coal dust.

IN THE AIR.—The city dweller may breathe an astonishing mixture. M. de Nansouty observes that the steam boilers of Paris greatly increase the air pollution, and that the sulphur vapors from the smoke, which are brought down by rain and fog are especially disastrous to the lungs. The dust particles of the city prove to be silex, chalk, plaster, pulverized rock, charcoal, hairs, fibers, vegetable refuse, starch, pollen grains, etc. A specimen of the dust that had settled in a third story in Rennes contained all this besides nearly 3,000,000 bacteria, while the dust of the streets held nearly 10,000 bacteria per grain.

LAMPS UPHELD BY GAS.—The idea of M. Rateau, as expressed the other day to the French Academy of Sciences, is that the phenomena of the earth's crust are well explained by considering that the planet's interior is molten, and that a layer of gaseous matter separates it from the portion of the crust forming the continents, whereas the sea-beds rest directly upon the igneous globe. The continental masses tend generally to rise, being forced up by the accumulating gases, while the sea-beds sink. The gradual escape of the gases, imprisoned under high pressure will in time exceed the production of new supplies, when the pressure will diminish and the continents fall in, giving rise to more or less crateriform configurations. This is the state in which the moon now appears. Assuming the crust to be 18½ miles thick, the pressure of the gases should be 60 atmospheres, their temperature 900 degs. C., and their density nearly equal to that of water. This theory makes it clear why volcanoes in the interior of continents give off gas instead of lava, and why lines of coast volcanoes have successively receded inland where the sea has encroached.

An Orange Seventy-five Years Old.

Benjamin Hubbard of Wells has an orange that is 75 years old. It was found among the valuables of an uncle who died in the West Indies in 1818, and from the associations connected with it has been treasured by the family all these years. It shows no marks of decay, but is gradual shrinking, being now about the size of a hen's egg.—York Courant.

Given Up.

Crimsonbeak—I hear Mr. Bacon has been given up by the doctors.

Mr. Yeast—He must be a pretty sick man.

"On the contrary, he is perfectly well or the doctors would never give him up!"—Boston Transcript.

In Worcester, England, is a stone erected over the grave of a departed auctioneer of that city on which "Gone" is inscribed. In a Sussex graveyard, in addition to the initials of the deceased and the date of death, a stone has inscribed in large letters the words "He Was."

A Heritage in Bumblebees.

There are, at least in the older sections of the country, not nearly so many bumblebees as there were soon after its settlement. Explaining this assertion, American Cultivator says: "We grow as much clover as ever; but it is cut earlier, and the men and boys engaged in haying have more time to fight bumblebees than they did when all grass was cut with the scythe. There are not so many good places for the female bumblebees to lay their eggs in spring as there used to be. The soil is firmer, from longer cultivation, and there are fewer rotten stumps. In our boyhood pretty much all the fun we found in haying and harvesting time was in fighting bumblebees whose nests were in danger whenever we cut near where they were."

For Bronchitis

"I never knew of any good to result in my case from the use of medicine in the last few months, but now I feel as if I have suffered long enough from the complication of bronchitis. After trying many remedies without benefit, I finally tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and the result has been marvelous. A single dose seemed to relieve me of smoking, and seemed to give immediate rest."—L. A. Hurand, Stamp Gen. Store, Long Meadows, Va.

For La Grippe

"Last spring I was taken down with la grippe. At times I was completely prostrated, and sought all ways and means for relief that my health seemed as if it would in an hour escape. I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and took it according to directions, and I began to improve from the first dose. I do not believe that the effect would be so rapid."—W. H. Wilkins, Cook City, S. Dak.

For Lung Trouble

"For more than twenty-five years I suffered from a lung trouble attended with coughing so severe at times as to cause hemorrhage. The paroxysms frequently lasted three or four hours. I was induced to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and after taking five bottles, was thoroughly cured. I can confidently recommend this medicine."—Frank Holman, City Feed Store, Kansas City, Kans.

THE OPENING.

by the conductor and said to me in a commanding tone "[illegible]" I answered as politely as possible that my passport had already been examined and stamped and asked why he wanted it a second time. Eloquence was to me the grand argument raised out, and he, drawing a fresh recruit from the wings, said "That's our business! Your passport!" I pushed it without further parley.

"My fellow passengers looked at me as it seemed, with eloquent eyes and my own feelings reinforced me of the words of a Russian nobleman to me on a former visit, 'Russia is a gigantic prison, where honest men must submit to be treated as criminals.'"

Two years previously I had written a book on the religious movement in Russia, which had been forbidden by the Russian censor, but I did not think my name could be on the list of suspicious or dangerous foreigners.

After about an hour the conductor handed me my passport. On examining it I could not discover that anything had been done to it beyond writing something in Russian on it. An old German gentleman to whom I had observed my cavalry said to me in a low and paternal tone, "In Russia you must never ask questions, never make objections, nor worry your head, but quietly submit and leave everything to God." Century.

A Desperate Attack.

A remarkable exhibition of [illegible] in shooting was given by Colonel Nizamsah, a famous sportsman of India. He had got a running shot at a tiger from the back of his elephant, hitting him in the shoulder. The beast rushed away and made for some bushes 150 yards off, where, as we thought, he lay down. Tiger and mahout were in a complete heap on the ground. At the risk of hitting the man the colonel fired and heard the ball strike a bone.

The tiger, with a roar, rolled off the man and plunged into a ravine. The colonel's conical bullet had carried off the lower jaw and fangs of the brute. Another shot would have saved the man, for without a jaw the tiger could not seize him. The man, who was dead as it were, rose in the jungle, half pale by fear and by the tiger's claws.—Youth's Companion.

DR. GUNN'S ONION SYRUP
FOR COUGHS, COLDS AND CROUP.

GRANDMOTHER'S ADVICE.

In raising a family of nine children I my only remedy for Coughs, Colds and Croup was onion syrup. It always cured. Years ago I was told by my grandmother to use it for my children. Now my grandchildren take Dr. Gunn's Onion Syrup which is already prepared and more pleasant to take. Sold by druggists, 25 cents a bottle. Two bottles for 50 cents. Take no substitute for it. There's nothing so good.

Sold by P. E. Robinson, Druggist.

Some very handsome specimens of the Early Ohio potato are on exhibition on The Gazette's counter in the Business office They were raised on the Colorado Springs Gardens ranch without irrigation, and should be seen to be appreciated

According to the enthusiastic reports from the various Christian Endeavor societies of El Paso county, it is evident that the County Union Committee conference which is to be held at the Christian Church next Monday evening at 7 30 o clock will be one of the grandest, if not the grandest, union Y P S C E rally ever held in this city.

Bishop Matz has directed Rev Father Servant chaplain at the Glockner sanitarium of this city, to assume the pastorate of the Catholic church at Colorado City Father Servant will say mass at 10 30 to-morrow morning at the church in Colorado City In the evening a meeting will be held at 7 30 p m and all Catholic men are requested to meet at that time as there is important business to be discussed

Owing to increased business Mr Kennedy has secured the service of Mr. J. F Keefe to assist him in his office Mr Keefe comes from the Globe Investment Company of Boston and is well posted in the loan and insurance business Mr. Kennedy represents only reliable insurance companies and parties looking for insurance on their properties before the winter fires are started will find it to their interest to give him a call

Arrangements are rapidly progressing for the beginning of the sessions of the Winter Night College. The Current Topics class will be conducted by Professor L B Grafton of the Garfield school. The preliminary meeting for organization will be held one week from last evening, Oct. 27, at 7 30 p m in the lecture room of the First Presbyterian Church It has been thought best to hold this meeting three weeks before the College begins its regular session on Nov. 17, so as to order text books and be prepared to make a flying start when the course is begun

On next Tuesday evening at the opera house we will have the ultra sensational melodrama at its best An exchange says "The Waifs of New York" is not excelled by any play of its class, either in the number or quality of its exciting scenes and episodes, and the story of Willie Rufus, the bootblack, and Little Gertie, the waif, has been a prolific source of entertainment and amusement for the masses during the long lived popularity of this play, which, among its other highly wrought up scenes, terminates with the Five Points fire and the red steam fire engine"

The African Methodist Episcopal Church gave an oyster supper last evening in the old Gazette building on Huerfano street which proved a great success in every way There was a large attendance and the colored people enjoyed themselves immensely Oysters in all styles ice cream and cake, were served, and there was good music to while the time away Members of The Gazette staff by invitation of the committee enjoyed the good things served About $20 was realized for the church fund from the supper

Cleveland's Minstrels

Cleveland's All United Minstrels will be the attraction at the Opera House Monday An exchange says The minstrel entertainments provided by W S Cleveland are invariably celebrated for several things First of all and above all the programme is rich in one liners that is always full of novelty and action and the laughing minstrel features are supplemented by the best specialties of the recreational and startling specialties The most prominent of all are those famous French artists, direct from the Diamantino Troupe recently engaged from De Cosson's Paris and Long Acre Theatres the African Dell vertuosi Twomley from Allman Hall London and The manager's aim is to surpass as well as amuse In the matter of costumes and scenery the Cleveland arrangement is always in advance of all others showing the most admirable and artistic taste both in the drapings and accessories surroundings The attention to detail, and the successful effort to elevate the entertainment has made the name of Cleveland a trade mark in all that is bright worthy and amusing in progressive modern minstrelsy

Resolutions by the Ministers

The following resolution was ordered entered in the records of the Ministerial association of this city last Monday afternoon

Resolved that the members of the Ministerial Association of Colorado Springs have heard with deep regret of the resignation of Rev Richard Montague D D of his pastorate, and of his departure from among us His wide and exact learning his power of felicitous and eloquent discourse his broad sympathies, his fraternal and genial spirit, his unaffected piety his readiness to co operate in every good work have made him one of our most honored and valued members We are sadly conscious that his departure means a great loss not only to ourselves, but to the whole community in which for six years he has been a conspicuous figure a discriminating and fearless opposer of wrong an earnest and effective upholder of the truth and righteousness and of whatever makes for the public good His will be a place not easy to be filled With the prayer that his removal to another field of labor may result in a trebled increase of physical strength the earnest wish that God may so dispose and direct his going that he may be blessed therein abundantly and that a successor may soon be found here who shall worthily carry on the work in which he has labored so devotedly and successfully and which is so near his heart, we bid him God speed upon his way

On behalf of the Ministerial Association

LEANDER CALLINGTON, President
M D OLMS, Secretary.

A Trifle Too Leisurely.

She was well dressed and had the appearance of being exact She came into the union depot and rushed to the ticket office

"What time does the next train leave for Chicago?" she asked

"It will start in five minutes"

"How much is the fare?"

"Twelve dollars"

"I thought it was only $10"

"Twelve dollars is the usual fare"

"Will it be any cheaper tomorrow?"

"Not a cent"

"Well I'll take a ticket."

"Here you are"

"Can you change a $50 bill?"

"Not"

"Change a $500 bill?"

It took her some time to gather up her change at I stow it away When she had performed the operation she smiled and asked

"What time did you say the train went?"

"The train is gone There will be an other one to Chicago tomorrow morning"

It was then that the woman vented her wrath upon the ticket seller But three other people who had been waiting in line behind her and who had also missed the train, smile grimly —Pittsburg Dispatch
